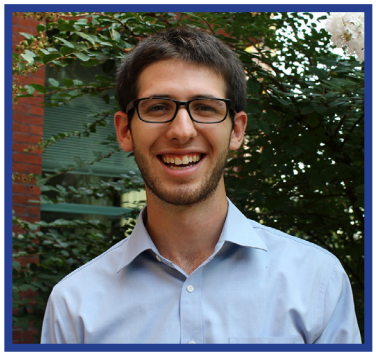
Eisendrath Legislative Assistants
2013-2014

CHARLIE ARNOWITZ is a native of Highland Park, IL. He graduated from Vermont's Middlebury College in 2013, where he studied Political Science and Chinese. Charlie's legislative portfolio includes immigration reform, civil rights, healthcare and mental health, intercultural relations, and the criminal justice system.

DEBORAH GOLDBERG is from Deerfield, IL, where she is a member of B'nai Jehoshua Beth Elohim. She graduated from Washington University in St. Louis in 2013, where she studied History and Political Science. Deborah's legislative portfolio includes all foreign policy and global development areas (including Israel), interfaith affairs, disability rights and advocacy, and gun violence prevention.

SOPHIE GOLOMB is originally from Brooklyn, NY and a member of Brooklyn Heights Synagogue. She graduated from Brandeis University in 2013 with a double major in Anthropology and Studio Art. Sophie's legislative portfolio includes LGBT rights, environmental issues and climate change, the international Jewish diaspora, and global and domestic anti-Semitism.

SARAH GREENBERG hails from Manhattan, NY, where her family attends Central Synagogue. She graduated from Cornell University in 2013, where she majored in Government and French. Sarah is the Legislative Assistant sponsored by the Women of Reform Judaism, and therefore her portfolio encompasses all women's issues and reproductive rights. Sarah also covers judicial nominations, civil liberties, and the separation of church and state.



HOWIE LEVINE is from St. Paul, MN, where he is a member of Mt. Zion Temple. He is a member of the Tufts University Class of 2013, where has graduated with a degree in Peace and Justice Studies. Howie's legislative portfolio includes all areas of domestic economic justice (including poverty, homelessness, and the federal budget), campaign finance and election reform, and youth/education issues.